Nicholas Portalupi - Selected Works

After its Parisian success, Nicholas Portalupi's solo exhibition will open in London on October 3rd, 2013. In this new series of collages, Nicholas Portalupi explores once again, themes of personal myth and identity by juxtaposing the frail against the vibrant.

The collages are delicately conveying an intimate and sensual feel. A hand or a faceless body found in magazines invites the viewers to separate themselves from their past and explore a not yet visible future.

If black and white tones remain predominant, Portalupi introduces touches of colours that the viewer will subjectively associate to a well-known atmosphere, a feeling or a new environment allowing for the detached bodies to live as new entities.
